> Laura smiled as she walked home.Today was a nice day,nothing seemed like it could go wrong for the young girl.She smiled and looked around,this new neighborhood was >interesting and everyone seemed happy.She had met new people and friends,this was a very nice neighborhood.She was glad her parents decided to move here,it was a very >big change from their old boring neighborhood.She took in the fresh spring air.The young child was blissfully unaware of the horrors awaiting her...

 "Mom! Dad! I'm home!" The young girl shouted.She went up to her room and carefully >placed her bag in the corner.She paused,usually her parents would have responded by now and came in her room.She walked to her doorway and leaned out,looking around.

>She spoke louder this time,"Mom? Dad?" Her voice echoed through the empty house.She began to panic.The young child was worried,this had never happened to her before.

>Usually her parents were on time and here.

> She slammed the door open and looked around the room.She quickly ran to her parent's door.It was locked shut,she could hear noises coming from inside.She quickly ran into >the kitchen and pulled open a drawer,forks and spoons flinging out.She frantically searched for a knife.She grabbed one,accidently slitting open her thumb.She ignored the wound >and swiftly ran to her parent's door.

> She nervously put the knife in the space between the door and the wall. She knew how to pick this lock, she had seen her dad do it millions of times. She heard the knob click > and she slowly pushed the door open. She saw little shadows scurrying around the room.

She flipped on the lights and spoke once more, "Mom? D-d-dad?" By this time the child > was frightened. Her parents were gone and she was seeing things. The child took one more step into the room before she felt a sharp pain in her ankle. She looked down > and screeched as she saw a small hamster with pigtails chomping on her ankle, but this hamster looked different, it was decaying.
She quickly jerked her leg to the side, slinging the horrid creature into a mirror. The > young girl looked around for a spot, she saw the bathroom door cracked. She quickly ran into the bathroom, slamming the door and locking it. She panted and thought, "What > was that thing? It looked like a hamster..but it was..rotting.." She then flicked the lights on and was filled with horror by what she saw. Her parent's bodies were in the > bathtub, their throats torn out. Their faces were barely recognizable, along with their bodies. The girl screamed in horror and ran out of the bathroom, not even caring about > the decaying creature in the room.
> She panted as she went up in to her room. Her mind filled with horrid thoughts and images. She grasped her brown hair and leaned against the wall. She slid down and > started to laugh hysterically, her whole world had been killed before her eyes. She then heard a noise and glanced over to Hamtaro's cage. The little hamster was > no where to be seen. She then saw him, the little hamster that used to be cuddly soft and cute. She slowly stood up, the cute cuddly hamster was no more. It was now > a decaying sack of flesh that hungered for none other than her living flesh. It lunged at the young girl. She jumped out of it's path and quickly opened the door. She ran > toward the staircase, the horrid mutant creature on her heels. She then turned around to look at the creature once more.
It looked like her beloved Hamtaro, but it was faded and decaying. She started to cry, > her parents and now her favorite pet? Why was god punishing her?

> The young girl had forgotten about the stair case behind her. She fell backwards and started to tumble down the stairs. Every stair causing an injury to her fragile body. She > gritted her teeth in pain. She then heard a loud crack as her neck was snapped from the impact of the last stair. She collapsed onto the floor, her face expressionless...
This was the end of Laura...

The first hamtaro fic on FFnet...
> (Note The hamsters were effected by the T-virus..so they were flesh eating zombies..)
